Foreword

Pool checkers is one of the oldest draughts (pronounced ‘drafts’) variations and is the mother game to both Brazilian and Russian checkers. Played mainly in East Africa (Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania, Malawi, Zambia, Zimbabwe, etc.) it is also popular in Jamaica and United States. Its main features are that checkers can take both forward and backwards and the kings are long.

This book is for the expert level players.

Checkers64 - Eastpoint

In 2002 there was a match between two great American players - checkers64 and Eastpoint. It was not an official match but a match nevertheless - the two played 84 exciting games, day after day, month after month. Both gave as much as they received. There were no quick draws, both players fought to win, demonstrating high skills and topping each other in wits and ingenuity. Each of the players made holes in his opponent's favorite opening lines, and each of them found ways to improve their lines.

A remarkable position. The first impression is that black is better, they dominate the center. The only flaw is checker on a7, it should have been somewhere on the other side. Yet, the active checker on e5 more than compensate for that.

1.cb4 ab6 Very strong move, now black either attack ba5 or shoot hg5.

2.hg5!! (Strategic pitch) hxf4 3.ba5 (diagram)

It requires a very creative mind to come up with such plan!

Not only we do not fight the center, we made it larger!

But notice that now f4 impedes the movement of 4 checkers behind it.

Watch the game unfold, watch black checkers suffocate from their own weight.

At first look black side appears very strong: with the next move they will start the attack in the middle after which white's grouping on its left side will become a significant weakness. But the unexpected pitch turns the game around.

1.ab6! cxa7 2.cd4 After the pitch it is now the white side that takes over the center while pinning down the hanging piece on g7. de7

White have $3+4+5=12$ development points, and black have $1+2+2=5$, meaning that white are 7 moves closer to the king row than black. That is a big advantage.

White have two moves – pitch bc5 or step back bc3 to exchange c5 next.

There is no strategic discovery here – you just need to count hard every move.

About the author

Jake Kacher was born in Kiev, Ukraine. His teacher was grandmaster Vladimir Kaplan, a student of Semen Natov, who learned from Pavel Bodyanskiy, quite a pedigree! In 1979 Jake immigrated to United States, where he taught the game in several cities. He was the first to create checker websites where he continues to teach and promote the game in many countries, from America to Africa to Philippines. Jake Kacher is a two-times USA champion in International checkers and the author of many books Jake Kacher \(poolcheckers.com\)

Jake Kacher's Big Day

3rd October, His Born Day

Let's Celebrate by Playing

To appreciate what Jake has done and continues doing in developing the game of draughts in Africa and world at large, we have decided to honor his born day henceforth, with a big international online open tournament on www.playok.com.

Kindly register to play for free and win some monetary prizes.

Some well wishers have contributed to make the day more memorable. Below are tournament details
